

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The image processing apparatus includes a CCD that receives an image, a fold detecting unit that detects edges using a lightness component of the received image and selects a specific one of the detected edges, and a fold erasing unit that corrects the lightness component of the selected specific edge. Thus, an image processing apparatus allowing removal of a noise appearing on the lightness component is provided.